Another Call To Arms

The Hancock County Courier, in its issue of Dec. 31, has fired a strong blast at illegal liquor-by-the-drink spots in the

The Courier's editor and publisher, Mary Lou Newburn, has presented the case well in turning her guns primarily on those establishments which permit teen-agers to purchase alcohol in one form or another.

The Review and other area newspapers have been highly critical of the situation in Hancock from time to time, especially over the fact that the area has become a drinking oasis for so many

The Courier re-emphasized a belief at which The Review has hammered over and over - that the law-abiding residents of Hancock County could remedy the situation if they would shed their apathy and replace it with a fierce determination to unite forces and see to it that proper action is taken.

The Courier puts it this way, in part: "The real responsibility belongs to the people . . . and rightly so. Our Constitution says that we live by a government of the people, by the people and for the people. This is the only answer . . . "Thus, if enough responsible citizens would stand as our county's conscience, enough people with real desire, courage and the ability, nothing bad could happen and only good could result! There would be no compromises with what is

"Then, if our officials showed evidence of a loose attitude towards permitting a little gambling, the sale of liquor-by-thedrink to anybody, let alone teen-agers, or any compromise with inefficiency, these citizens would stand ready to stop such compromises.

"Back - scratching in public affairs must be stopped completely!"

The Review agrees wholeheartedly. The Hancock situation is a tough nut to crack, even if one goes all the way to Charleston. The start of a new year would be a fine time for responsible citizens to take over and clamor for action so loudly and so forcefully that their demands could not be ignored.

Bicyclists Should Obey The Rules

Bicycle fatalities reached a 21-year high last year, pointing up the need to teach children who got their first "bikes" at Christmas the basic safety rules before they take to the road.

Records show that 570 persons were killed and 30,000 others were injured while riding bicycles and that three out of four victims were under 15, the age bracket receiving most of the thousands of bicycles presented as holiday gifts.

While this isn't the season for much outside bicycle riding, it is good as any other time to be sure that youngsters know the rules of safe cycling and why they must obey them.

Safety experts declare that a safe bicyclist always will:

Learn to ride in a safe place, signal for stops and turns, yield the right-of-way to pedestrians, ride alone, ride single file, keep the bicycle in good condition and be sure he or she can be seen both day and night

Since many bicycles are delivered "knocked down," parents should double check to be sure they are assembled prop-

Motorists also are urged to be extra alert when approaching a bicyclist and assume the rider is new at guiding his vehicle and may not be fully alert to traf-

Little Data Available About Red China

Red China is the most populous country in the world today, yet probably is the least known.

When the news came recently that Red China had exploded her first atomic bomb, peopleevery-where wondered how soon the Peking regime would make more bombs and perhaps David Lawrence increase the threat to neighboring countries. Because few news correspondents have been permitted to enter the mainland of China, very little is known even about the essential facts of the country's growth and economic development-or how soon the terror of her bombs may be widened.

Prof. Chu-yuan Cheng, who is research economist at the Center for Chinese Studies conducted by the University of Michigan, is recognized as a top authority on Communist China's internal affairs. In a copyrighted interview this week in U.S. News & World Report, he answers a number of significant questions about what is going on in Red China-a country of more than 700 million people. "China's economic condition," he said, "is very poor now and will not allow her to make ambitious moves. In fact, China is still on the brink of starvation. But, in the longer run, this could be a different story. . . In about three years, things could start changing. By 1967, Red China will be a much more threatening power to her neighbors than she is now.

"First, she will start accumulating a nuclear stockpile at about that time-not only Abombs, but we may start seeing the first Chinese Rockets then.

"Secondly, 1967 will mark a target date that Mao Tze-tung set, back in 1949, for the completion of China's industrialization program. I think 1967 could well be a turning-point year for Peiping, and it is a crucial year for the West to watch."

PROF. CHENG was asked how it was possible for him to know as much as he does about Red China, from which he fled in 1949 to escape the Communists. He replied:

'Espionage is one way, and, of course, the U2 planes were very effective in the case of the atom bomb. But that is not my area. In my field-research-we can get much information from In Communist China they now have about 200 technical periodicals published by various institutes in the Chinese Academy which some day could come to of Sciences and by various academic associations. We check munist regime.

these periodicals rather regularly and find good information occasionally. This is very difficult work, because sometimes it takes hundreds of documents to get just a few lines.

'We have for three years conducted a research project investigating scientific and technical manpower in Communist China. We have studied theusands and thousands of periodicals, booklets and newspapers."

It's interesting to note that some of the people who are high up in the Communist Chinese government on the scientific side were originally trained in the United States and other Western countries. What is surprising is that China is continuing to get from some of these countries important electronic and other special equipment needed for rocketry.

MR. CHENG says that China's future depends on the growth of her national economy, her relations with Moscow and the West, and the unity of the Communist party.

He says that today Communist China is isolated and hostile to the three most populous countries in the world—Russia, India and the United States.

To improve her position, he thinks China must change this situation and that, if in the near future Peking cannot improve its relations with these big countries, she will have to continue to fight on three fronts. This will keep the whole country in great stress and strain.

Mr. Cheng says there is no question in his mind but that Soviet Russia started China on the way to the bomb and then abruptly withdrew. He says that Khrushshev in 1957 in a secret agreement promised to provide Red China with a sample atomic bomb and the technical data concerning its manufacture

The details of the agreement didn't become known until 1963, when Communist China published the secret document as part of its denunciation of Khrushchev.

THE RED CHINESE keep telling their own people that the other countries of the world are hostile to them and that the making of A-bombs is absolutely essential and is to be given priority over agriculture and any other economic development.

This, of course, represents an opening for the Western world. For, despite all the inventive genius available in the West, nobody has perfected a simple means of communication which can get through to the people on the Chinese mainland and tell them of the extensive aid them if they overthrew the Com-

WASHINGTON

President Johnson begins the supreme test of his life today. He asked for it, and everything that went before was a preparation for this.

Until now he has been a man who inherited the presidency. The four-year term he finally won for himself and on his own doesn't officially begin until his inauguration Jan. 20

But for all practical purposes it begins today at 9 p.m. with his State of the Union message to the new and overwhelmingly Democratic Congress. The message was not expected to lay down in detail the things he has in mind.

That in itself is one of the best insights not only into the man but into the difference between him and his predecessor, President John F. Kennedy Kennedy poured programs on Congress with glistening phrases. But, because he had won the presidency by a thin margin, seemed uncertain he had a dominant public backing. As a result, he didn't fight hard for his proposals and failed to enlist broad public pressure on Congress to get what he wanted. Although he was a shining figure himself, his legislative performance was very unimpressive.

Johnson, who won election by the greatest plurality in history and will deal with a Congress more heavily Democratic than any since President Franklin B. Roosevelt's second term, is in a better position to demand ao-

BUT HE IS reported to feel his election success was not necessarily a mandate to try to swamp Congress with programs but rather to feel his victory was a mandate for prudence and restraint.

That interpretation of Johnson's feelings can be taken with a grain of salt. Prudence and restraint just happen to be Johnson's way of trying to get what he wants by figuring the

JOHNSON was in Congress 23 years. But Johnson balances his instinct for compromise with fierce energy and persistence and extraordinary attention to details and the soft and strong points of the people he has to deal with. Therein lies the key to his political philosophy.

Instead of seeking the immediate brilliant victory on a single issue, he has based his career on seeking the broadest possible final triumph. In other words, not total victory on a few issues but some victory on

You And The Law

The automobile means a great deal to our society. Because of its importance, however, there are numerous rules and regulations which must be followed so that the roads will be safe for all

Most drivers are constantly aware that while it's a great feeling to "get going" all that machinery they are operating must eventually be brought to a halt - sometimes rapidly. The brake system is, then, a very important part of the car.

SUPPOSE YOU are driving down the highway at a legal speed and, upon coming to a stop sign, discover to your horror that the brake pedal goes to the floor and the car keeps rolling. You immediately pull the emergency brake handle, but to no avail.

As you go through the intersection - and the stop sign - an oncoming car strikes you broadside. Both cars land in the ditch. Are you responsible for the failure of your brakes, even though the emergency system fails through no fault of the operator.

THE TOPIC of automobile brakes usually brings up the subject of "assured clear distance ahead," or as commonly known in police terminology, "ACDA." This is the portion of the Ohio traffic law that specifies that you must maintain an "assured clear distance" behind another car in the event of an emergency

You may think that road conditions, such as ice or rain, may mitigate your responsibility in a rear - end collision, but you are wrong. In an Ohio Supreme Court case, the court reaffirmed the law where the driver must take the street conditions into consideration as well as other circumstances in regulating his car's speed in relation to this stopping distance. It is the duty of all drivers to keep their cars in good working order, both for their own safety and for the safety of others and to exercise care at all times when they are driving.

19 Mark Early Ballots In Beaver Local Vote

Sixteen civilian absentee ballots and three issued under the "soldier voting law" have been returned to be counted at the polls Tuesday in a special election in the Beaver Local School

Three civilian absentee ballots were not returned prior to the Thursday deadline, the board said. There are no outstanding ballots for military personnel.

Voters in the school district will go to the polls between 6:30 a. m. and 6:30 p. m. to vote on a 5.4-mill levy for operating expenses rejected at the general election in November. A 55 per cent majority is needed for passage.

Woman, 29, Injured In Wellsville Mishap

A Wellsville woman was injured when her husband's car was struck in the rear at the intersection of Routes 7 and 45 in Wellsville early Saturday, police said

Mrs. Betty Carr, 29, of 1395 Hillcrest Rd. was treated at City Hospital for a neck injury suffered when the car driven by her husband, Albert J. Carr, was hit in the rear by another driven by Francis B. Cain, 1519 Clark Ave., Wellsville.

Police said Carr had halted at the intersection for a traffic light. Cain was charged with reckless operation and will receive a hearing Saturday before Mayor William Daugherty.

Our Job is generating electricity and getting it to where it's used. We're in this business because it is concerned with the supply of a fundamental requirement of modern living, because it's an honorable one, because we like it, and because we want to earn a living at it.

We aim to give one kind of service to everyone... the best that's possible. That means supplying our customers with what they want when they want it. It means being courteous at all times and maintaining attractive, easy-to-do-business-with offices.

It means doing everything we can to keep complaints from arising, and it means prompt and fair handling of those that do.

-Junior Editors Quiz on-DRIFTWOOD

QUESTION: Where does driftwood come from?

ANSWER: Bits of driftwood turn up on most ocean beaches, often deposited by the high tide and left stranded as the water recedes. They come to the beach in many ways, often being dead trees and branches which float down rivers and out to sea, where they are carried around by ocean currents. Broken boxes and wreckage of various kinds are another source. The action of the water makes driftwood strangely beautiful, smoothing it down to a silvery sheen and often showing the rhythmic nature of the wood, making it look like fine sculpture. Of recent years, fine pieces are frequently used for such ornamental purposes as lamp bases (left).

One does not need to live by the sea to enjoy the interest of such wood, for dead trees and stumps often take fascinating shapes as the soft wood rots away and leaves the harder grain showing. In the picture, Ted found a bit which looked like a funny head (1). He scraped out two eyeholes, filled them with white cardboard. Finding another piece for a body, he has drilled a hole in it and put a wooden dowel in the bottom of the head. In (2) he glues in the peg and there, in (3), is the final figure. It was fun to make-he's going to try

FOR YOU TO DO: Other people have imagination besides Ted. Get in on the act-watch for some old wood stems or roots which remind you of heads, nands or bodies. Then see what you can do putting them together.
